

The Heart Knows No Gender

By Dr. Michael Obsatz – March 2026

Love comes from our hearts. It flows through us, into the world. Some believe God IS love. Males and females share One heart expression. Oneness Consciousness is about connection, unity, love and abundance.

We all can have access of all emotions, all modes of expression.

Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender" can represent all of creation.

Traits that relate to love are in all of us — people of all races, religions, sexual orientations, genders, ages and social classes. These traits of love include empathy, compassion, nurturing, supporting, being vulnerable, listening and presence.

Some have claimed that the loving traits are feminine and the protective traits are masculine. Aggressiveness is categorized as masculine. Passivity is labeled feminine.

I believe this is too simplistic and creates all kinds of anxiety and discomfort. We find girls and women exhibiting traits that are called "masculine" — assertive, powerful and protective. Men and boys can be gentle, kind, loving, and vulnerable.

Let's consider changing our language into Oneness Consciousness. Divine Masculine and Divine Feminine can become Divine Oneness love expressions. These loving traits are available to all people, all genders.

Lesley Duncan wrote "Love Song." "Love is what we came here for. Love is the opening door." Let us live in Oneness Consciousness and claim our wholeness, our spiritual beingness, and our incredible lovability.
